Hyperbaric Oxygenation in the complex treatment of patients with aneurysms of the cerebral vessels

Zh Vopr Neirokhir Im N N Burdenko 1980
Jul-Aug;(4): 49-54
[Article in Russian]

Ugriumov VM, Elinskii MP, Rafikov AM, Kesaev SA

Experience in the use of Hyperbaric Oxygenation (HBOT) in 56 neurosurgical patients with cerebral vascular aneurysms, mainly in the postoperative period, testifies to the expediency of including this method in the complex of therapeutic measures for these patients.

The deep oxygenation of the body tissues, the brain included, produced by HBOT makes it possible to prevent in many cases the development of severe and stable neurological defects in the postoperative period and contributes to the normalization of vitally important functions.